

Papa John's

Sustainability Efforts

Papa John's is committed to being a good steward of the environment.

Energy Savings

- In our Quality Control Centers, we are transitioning our refrigerated trailers to run off of electricity during loading and storage instead of diesel fuel.
- We are reducing hot water use and natural gas in our Quality Control Centers by implementing new techniques to sanitize our commissary facilities and equipment.
- The pizza ovens in our restaurants are being outfitted with power-save technology to conserve energy during down time between orders.
- We have outfitted all of our more than 600 corporate restaurants with LED lights and every new Papa John's restaurant built will have LED lighting.

Recycling

- We grind and repurpose our dough trays that are no longer fit for use. In 2018, we diverted over 100,000 trays from landfills.
- In our corporate headquarters, we recycle paper, aluminum, glass and plastic and recycle all old technology equipment through an "e-cycler" partner.

Sustainability

- We are working towards 100% sustainable fiber pizza boxes certified by the Sustainable Forestry Initiative (SFI) and Programme for the Endorsement of Forest Certification (PEFC).
